

```
-- DDL

-- create(data bnane me)

-- drop(data ko remove krta hai)

-- alter(data ko change krta hai)

-- truncate(fist it drop the table then recreate the table again)

create database testdb6;

use testdb6;

-- table structure

create table testdb6.employee1(id int);

select * from testdb6.employee1;

drop table testdb6.employee1; -- remove

select * from testdb6.employee1;

-- secoend time

create table testdb6.employee1(id int);

select * from testdb6.employee1;

-- DDL (alter)

alter table testdb6.employee1 add column name varchar(20);

alter table testdb6.employee1 drop column id;

select * from testdb6.employee1;

desc testdb6.employee1;

alter table testdb6.employee1 modify column name int ;
```

```
alter table testdb6.employee1 add column empid int ; -- add a column
```

```
desc testdb6.employee1;
```

```
alter table testdb6.employee1 add constraint unique(name); -- unique constrain
```

```
alter table testdb6.employee1 modify column empid int NOT NULL ; -- not null on a table column
```

```
desc testdb6.employee1;
```

```
alter table testdb6.employee1 modify column empid int primary key; -- primary key
on a table column
```

```
desc testdb6.employee1;
```

```
alter table testdb6.employee1 rename column empid to id; -- column rename
```

```
alter table testdb6.employee1 rename to employee2; -- table rename
```

```
desc testdb6.employee2;
```

```
-- truncate
```

```
select * from testdb6.employee2;
```

```
insert into testdb6.employee2 values(100,30);
```

```
truncate testdb6.employee2; -- fist it drop the table then recreate the table again
```

```
select * from testdb6.employee2;
```

```
desc testdb6.employee2;
```

```
set SQL_SAFE_UPDATE = 0;
```

```
insert into testdb6.employee2 values(10,199),(14,299), (15,890),(18,5708) , (17,90910);
```

```
update testdb6.employee2 set name='890' where id = 299; -- will make the every row
select * from testdb6.employee2;
```

```
delete from testdb6.employee2 where name = 10; -- delete DML HAI / donot create the structure
```

```
select * from testdb6.employee2;
```